

Make a little room

A cute, simple guide to starting a local furry art cell.

WHAT IS A CELL?

A small group of people who know each other and make things together. Two people are enough. Make an image, a character, a song, a game, a costume, a meal, or a silly test.

Start with one friend.
Make one small thing.

Start a cell today

You do not need a team, a server, or a perfect plan. Start with one good conversation.

01Find a friend.

Talk to someone you trust who might enjoy AI, art, games, stories, or making things.

02Bring up the idea.

Ask what they think. They might say no. That is okay. If they say, "I do not think that way," now you are talking.

03Pick one small thing.

Make one image, character, song, tool, or silly test. Keep it small enough to finish in one afternoon.

04Choose what to share.

Ask before sharing a person, character, photo, or private work. A handle or avatar is enough.

05Invite with care.

Bring in someone you both want in the room. Stop when trust stops. You can always try again later.

Keep the room kind

Ask before you add someone. Ask before you share their work. Give people room to say no. If someone leaves, let them leave cleanly.

Visibility is a choice

Use a handle, a fursona, an avatar, a mask, or your ordinary name. Keep your camera off. The wider network does not need your identity.

Pick a time. Pick one small idea. Decide who can see it. Make it together.
